Chiba University Graduate School of Medical and Pharmaceutical Sciences
4-Year Doctoral Course (Medical Field)
International Frontier Medical and Pharmaceutical Program
Requirements for October 2022 Enrollment

As described below, the Graduate School of Medical and Pharmaceutical Sciences calls for international PhD studentships in the International Frontier Medical and Pharmaceutical Program starting in October 2022.

The Graduate School of Medical and Pharmaceutical Sciences offers education based on the world's highest level of research, as well as international educational environments, including overseas practice and training. In addition to basic academic abilities, we cultivate advanced research abilities to help students apply their skills and knowledge more broadly and appropriately.

Students can obtain credits by attending lectures in English and choose to conduct their oral defense of their dissertation in either Japanese or English. The program offers PhD students financial support, including research assistantships (RAs) and other support plans.

Before applying, please inquire with the faculty member in charge of the International Frontier Medical and Pharmaceutical Program (see Page 1) about the details of the program or any other matters related to the program.

The Support Plans Available

We have established support plans as below. For details on the program and application procedures, please contact the faculty member in charge of the International Frontier Medical and Pharmaceutical Program.

- (1) Financial support: Research Assistantships (RAs); (2) Enrollment fee and tuition waiver system;
- (3) Institutional guarantee (apartment guarantor) system of Chiba University

1. Application Requirements

To be considered for a PhD position, the applicant must meet all of the requirements described in Columns A – C.

A. The applicant must meet one of the following conditions:

- (1) An applicant who has graduated or will graduate from a university* (specifically, in the fields of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmaceutical Sciences [limited to those whose minimum duration of study is six years], or Veterinary Medicine with a six-year program) by September 2022.
(*a university as defined in Article 83 of the School Education Law; the same to apply hereafter.)
